Central Virginians win awards from Governor

Governor announces 2008 Volunteerism and Community Service Award recipients

RICHMOND - Governor Timothy M. Kaine has announced the recipients of the 2008 Governor's Volunteerism and Community Service Awards. Three Central Virginians from Charlottesville and Scottsville are among this year's 12 winners.

The awards highlight the efforts of outstanding citizens of the Commonwealth who seek to enhance the lives of others in their communities. The awards are presented to groups, individuals and families whose efforts exemplify extraordinary volunteer service.

"I congratulate the winning volunteers who help us move Virginia forward and improve the quality of life for all Virginians," said Governor Kaine. "When we serve our community as volunteers, our unique skills, perspectives and experience make us a stronger Commonwealth."

Area winners of the 2008 Governor's Community Service and Volunteerism Award winners are:

- Sarah Mank, Charlottesville: National Service Individual Award. Mank conducts community education, outreach and one-on-one Medicare counseling to the elderly and disabled populations in her community.
- Tenaska Virginia Generating Station, Scottsville: Business Award. Tenaska employees tutor and mentor elementary and middle school children throughout Fluvanna County.
- University of Virginia Health System, Community Outreach, Charlottesville: Government Award. UVA Health System volunteers provide medical care to underserved people in the remote, rural mountain regions of Southwest Virginia.

Governor Kaine has proclaimed April 27 – May 3 as Volunteer Week in Virginia. As a prelude, awards were presented during a three-day conference on volunteerism and community service, April 23 –25, in Virginia Beach. The Governor's Commission on Community and National Service, Virginia Corps and the Virginia Department of Social Services' Office on Volunteerism and Community Service hosted the awards ceremony on Thursday, April 24.

At least 1.7 million Virginians volunteer their time and talents annually. Virginians average nearly 243 million volunteer hours, equaling more than $4 billion dollars worth of service to the state.
